32. Ralph Dunham, b. Scrooby, England, 1526, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Baron Thomas Wentworth and wife Margaret Fortesque. See 142.

33. Thomas Dunham, b. about 1560. Lived at Scrooby. Through his mother's religious instructions he was inclined toward the Puritan reformers. His kindred, the la Zuches, Wentworths, etc., who were rigid members of the established church and powerful government officials, violently opposed the Puritans of Scrooby, to such extent that Thomas Dunham moved to London to escape persecution. He had sons: John, b. Scrooby, 1589, and Robert, b. London, 1605. The latter was transported to Virginia (America) 1635.

34. Deacon John Dunham,[1] b. Scrooby, England, 1589; m. Leyden, Holland, Oct. 17, 1619. Abigail Wood, who is supposed to have been distantly related to him. His relatives in England were rigid church men and violently opposed the Puritans at Scrooby, but he separated from the established church and joined the Puritans. It is supposed that he was among Brewster's Company who were arrested and imprisoned at Boston, England, for attempting to escape from England in 1607. By the advice of Brewster, Dunham assumed the name of John Goodman and escaped to Holland in 1608. By the same name he came in the Mayflower to Plymouth, 1620. Until recently it was supposed that "John Goodman" died at Plymouth the first winter, but it was not so. A lot of land was assigned to him adjoining that of his friend, Elder William Brewster, at Plymouth. Brewster, Bradford and Dunham, all came from Scrooby. The kindred of Dunham were influential government officials in England, and would probably have punished him if discovered, so he retained his identity until the death of King James. Among his kindred in England was Thomas Wentworth, Earl Strafford, Prime minister to King Charles I. About that period he resumed his proper name, John Dunham. He lived in Plymouth. Deacon in the church, 1633. Deputy to the first General Court at Plymouth, 1639. He d. Mar. 2, 1668-9.

Grand juror and non-commissioned officer. 30 acres of meadow land northeast of Cook's Pond was granted to him Mar. 7, 1643. His father gave him six acres of land Jan. 16, 1647. In 1659 the Court granted to him and others land to be selected at Sconsett. In 1660 he was granted 30 acres on west side of the Nansket. Highway surveyor, 1661. In 1662 he was named as one of the first born (Pilgrims) who were granted land in Barnstable, Mass. He bought into "The Purchase" at Middleborough, Mass., 1673,, and became an inhabitant there. In 1674, he was granted 30 acres of land. Representative 1673. He d. Wellfleet, Mass., 1692. Will dated Plymouth, Feb. 2, 1691; probated 1692.
